I will ask him to try it at my risk. If it fails, he shall not lose

I will trust the sick one's honor.

With the book I will send an order on your druggist for six bottles Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I will authorize your druggist to let the sick one test it for a month. If it succeeds, the cost is only $5.50. If it falls, I will pay your druggist myself.

I will leave the decision to you.

Will any sick person say "no" to that? I am sorry for those who do. A physician who has spent his life on a treatment knows its power. A physician who says "I will pay if it fails" must know that he can cure. A sick one so discouraged as to neglect an offer like that practically abandons hope.

I cannot cure all who accept.

Some suffer from conditions, like cancer, which medicine Nor can I select the impossible cases, for I do not meet you;

I cannot examine you. So I take the risk with all. My records now cover over 600,000 cases. They show that than to the few. He was a man of great energy, which did not desert him until late in life. His magnetism and his habit of appealing directly to his hearers gave him a hold upon their hearts such as few preachers have possessed.

With all of his success in the pulpit, Doctor Talmage was pursued by singular lifertune. Three times the Brooklyn Tabernacle, built through his efforts when his fame was highest, was burned to the ground. Each time the fire took place on Sunday and in no case was its cause ever discovered. After the last fire, which occurred in 1894, the congregation broke up and never was brought together again in such numbers as before.

As often occurs with clerxymen who attract a large share of public attention Doctor. Talmage was not without detractors. Charges of a serious nature were preferred against him by the Reverend Arthur Crosty in 1879, but the Presbytery acquitted him by a vote of 25 to 26.

With the successive loss of his churches, Doctor Talmage was called upon face repeated family afflictions, but his buoyant nature enabled him to surmount all his difficulties and sorrows and to remain unbroken to the end. In the later years of his life he dropped out of public notice to a large extent and to the younger generation he was more a famous name than a distinct personality.

He was born on January 7, 1832, in Bound Brook, N. J. His father, David T. Talmage, was a farmer, and the future clergyman was the youngest of twelve children. He was ordained by the Reformed Dutch Classic of Bergen, and soon received a certificate from Belleville. N. J. He went there with his bride. From Belleville the young minister was called to Syracuse, N. T. He went to Philadelphia in 1862 and in 1869 received a call from the Central Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, was immediate. He found a congregation of thirty-five members. It increased so rapidly that a new church was needed, and the first tabernacle was begun in 1870, a year after his arrival.

Gees to Russia With Cargo of Flour.

In 1891 Doctor Taimage sailed for Russia with a cargo of flour for the famine-strick-en people there. He returned through England, preaching with great success. The third Tabernacle was burned on Sunday, May 12. 1894, after Dr. Talmage had preached his farewell sermon. He had celebrated his silver jubilee in the church a few days before and was about to resign.

After a trip to Honoloulu he did resign on November 9, 1894, and then preached at various places until he accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church in Washington, on September 20, 1895.

Doctor Taimage was married three times. The bride who went with him to his first charge was Miss Mary Avery of Brooklyn. They were married in 1890. She was drowned in the Schuyßill River when he was paster of his third church, which was in Philadelphia. Miss Susan C. Whittemore of Brooklyn was married to the young preacher in 1862. She died in August, 1895, of a a sanitarium. Mrs. Charles Collier of Allegheny, Pa., became Doctor Taimage's wife on January 22, 1898, after an engagement of three weeks.

A delicious food that is nourishing for both mother and infant may be depended upon to fit other people. This mother's story is interesting:

"My baby is now a fine, robust little fellow 2 years and 6 months old, but I had a dreadful time with him at first. I could not nurse him because I was so I gave him different kinds of foods, but he was crying nearly all of the time and would vomit after every meal.

"His condition worked on my nerves dreaffully, and I called in Dr. Campbell. After inquiring carefully into the case, he said: 'You send at once for some Grape-Nuts; take four teaspoonfuls in a cup of bot milk on going to bed; also feed your baby on some of the food in hot milk."

BASKET SHARES Advance April 19th, or Earlier.

THE mid-week announcement that shares of the Mergenthaler-Horton Basket Machine Company would be advanced in price on or before April 24th resulted in so many new subscriptions that the closing of the 50-cent allotment has been brought five days nearer.

This present announcement, therefore, is that on or before Saturday, April 19th, instead of Thursday, April 24th, the price of shares in the Mergenthaler-Horton Basket Machine Company advances from 50 cents a share to 60 cents a share (par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable).

Present Selling Price 50 Cents a Share

The closing day for this allotment has now been moved back twice, once from May 1st to April 24th, and now from April 24th to April 19th.

There are thousands ready to buy these shares. It is therefore necessary, in order to protect the interests of early shareholders, that the Directors reserve the right to reject any subscription, otherwise any day might see the allotment far oversubscribed.

It is but fair to state that those who have followed the course of the offering of these shares from the first allotment down to the present should be prepared now to take action and subscribe, as the price will go steadily higher.

The above statements are made by authority of the Directors.

The discovery by a graduate of the university that yellow fever can only be transmitted through the bite of a mosquito; that another graduate was a accepted authority in his text-book on "The Conflict of Law"; that the choice for Surgeon General of the Navy fell recently on another graduate of that institution—these and other instances of victories of her children were cited in support of the superiority of the great university founded on freedom of thought and sterling honor.

In responding to the sentiment, "The University of Virginia and the Louisiana Purchase," Judge Alexander Graves of Lexington, Mo., said, in part:

"Had I the power, the time and occasion will permit only the most meager gleanings from the vast field of thought that broadens into view when the mind attempts a contemplation of those wonderful creations which stamp Jefferson as possessed of attributes almost divine. The majesty of conception which shines forth in each of these and their marvelous results affecting our own country and the world at large are of such stupendous import as to cause a deep sense of humility in approaching the subject assigned to me. The intellectual operations which characterize Jefferson are simply godlike in their grandeur.

"Just sixteen years elapsed from the time he finished the Declaration of Independence to the conclusion of his treaty of the Louisiana Purchase with Naroleon, which all of the civilized world is now assembling to celebrate in this magnificent city of St. Louis, and just sixteen years thereafter his life work culminated in the founding of the University of Virginia, the most sublime upon this continent.

"It can be truthfully sall that through the institution of this noble university, the lengthening shadow of Jefferson's individual influence across the valleys of history in the United States is plainly discernible; and with greater truth may we affirm it to be an advancing and growing light.
